

PRNs give practitioners a chance to ask each other questions about real-world scenarios they face on a daily basis. Learning how others deal with unique pharmacotherapy issues has been vital to my clinical development.

I believe networking creates opportunities; whether in knowledge, research ideas, career possibilities, or mentorship. I have found the PRNs to be an invaluable resource in growing my opportunities as a trainee.

ACCP Practice and Research Networks (PRNs) represent focused interest groups of the College's members. Resident and fellow members of ACCP receive one free PRN membership. ACCP PRNs provide a means for clinical pharmacists with common practice and research interests to gather for professional interaction, networking, and continuing education. Activities within individual PRNs may vary depending on the interests and perceived needs of each PRN's members. This newsletter features a different PRN each month. Review the archived issues and PRN webpage to learn about opportunities for residents and fellows within the PRN of your choice.
